SWM MI Works Board Member Appointed To Governor Talent Board

A member of the Workforce Development Board of Michigan Works in Southwest Michigan has been named to Governor Rick Snyder's new Talent Investment Board. The governor announced the new body this week, saying it'll help get the state's skills training program in line with what others are doing...and Arnold Redsicker, of Michigan Works, is to be one of its 47 members. Redsicker, who lives in Lawrence, is director of business development and products at Lovejoy Inc in South Haven. He's served on the Michigan Works board for 16 years, nine of which he led as chairman. He says that he looks forward to bringing some of Southwest Michigan's ideas to the governor's new Talent Investment Board.
